Presenting:

Security Sector Reform & Governance: Leadership Engagement

This module, based on the United Nations “CROSSROADS” guidance module on this topic, aims to provide an overview of the basic principles underscoring the United Nations approach to security sector reform and governance (SSR&G). This executive-level training explains the role of mission leadership in building the foundations for peace, development, and human rights through SSR&G. Coherent “One-United Nations” support of national leaders is outlined through succinct actions and recommendations emphasizing the value of strengthening security sector governance. Finally, indicators facilitate self-reflection by senior leadership to measure progress and better prioritize SSR&G outcomes.

Based on United Nations guidance on Security Sector Reform & Governance (www.un.org/ssr/guidance/crossroads).

Learning Objectives:

Understand the basic principles underscoring a United Nations approach to SSR&G.

Understand the importance of team and resource management for mission leadership on SSR&G.

Identify how to provide cohesive and coherent “One United Nations” support on SSR&G.

Reflect on the role of mission senior leadership in SSR&G.
