Presenting:

Technology and Innovation in United Nations Peace Operations

Technology has transformed peace operations. This course explores the current and emerging landscape of technology in the field, including its use by the UN and non-State actors. It also seeks to strike a balance between the wonders of technology and its negative consequences. Overall, this course aims to help peacekeepers navigate new and familiar technologies in the field.

Author: Dr. A. Walter Dorn

60.00 USD

Eight lessons
150 pages

5 reading hours

Audiobook available

Available in English

Learning Objectives:

Assess the benefits and risks of new technologies.

Understand how technology helps peace operations personnel live, move, and work.

Understand how the United Nations collects and analyses data.

Be familiar with United Nations processes for acquiring technology

Examine the obstacles to implementing new technologies in the field.

Know the process of how technological innovations are developed and adopted.

Enrol here: <https://www.peaceopstraining.org/courses/tech-en-2023/>