Presenting:

Implementation of the UN Security Council Resolutions on the Women, Peace, and Security Agenda in Asia and the Pacific

This course is a practical tool for those supporting the implementation of the women, peace, and security (WPS) agenda in Asia and the Pacific. It explores recent National Action Plans, evolving strategies for enhancing women's political participation, and best practices for gender mainstreaming.

This course was developed by the United Nations Entity for Gender Equality and the Empowerment of Women (UN Women) in collaboration with POTI.

Learning Objectives:

Understand the importance of promoting gender equality and the empowerment of women and girls.

Identify the UN system's main documents and decisions affirming equal rights as they relate to international peace and security.

Understand the conceptual and political framework that led to the passage of UNSCR 1325 (2000) and its importance for promoting a gender perspective in the areas of peace and security.

Understand the importance of addressing gender inequalities in post-conflict reconstruction processes.

Discuss the current state of armed conflict and peace and security in the Asia-Pacific region and its impact on women and girls.

Discuss implementation priorities relating to women, peace, and security in the Asia-Pacific region within the framework of UNSCR 1325 (2000) and sister resolutions, with relevant examples.

Understand the roles of the various regional and subregional institutions and mechanisms working on the WPS agenda in the Asia-Pacific.
